Biography.

Randall joined Risk International in 2002 and handles many of the strategic, analytical and technical aspects of our risk management activities, including quantitative modeling, statistical analytics, qualitative and quantitative research, competitive and organizational dynamics, business continuity planning, and strategic risk management (ERM).

Prior to joining Risk International, Randall advised Fortune 100 clients in the global aerospace, defense, and chemical industries, both with PricewaterhouseCoopers' Washington consulting practice as a strategy consultant, and as a freelance management consultant. Internationally, he has advised the government of Italy (ministry of finance) on its procurement activities, lived and worked as a volunteer for two years in India, and travels extensively. He is also experienced in the computer software industry where he was Director of Quality Assurance for a leading IT-training software manufacturer.

Randall is an honors graduate from Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business with an MBA, as well as an honors graduate in International Business Diplomacy from Georgetown's School of Foreign Service. Randall also graduated with honors from Brigham Young University with a BA in International Relations and International Business.

Randall is a member of RIMS, PRMIA, and Beta Gamma Sigma, the international business honor society. He is a certified business continuity planner, holding the Associate Business Continuity Professional (ABCP) designation from DRI International. He is also a member of Net Impact, a network of business leaders committed to using the power of business responsibly to create a better world.
